Reference: Computer Technical Services

My business is roofing and all my time is dedicated to my business. We use computers as a tool and give very little thought to computers. However, when our estimating computers crashed that end of our business came to a halt. As you can guess, we went into a panic mode when we realized the projects we may lose if we could not submit our proposals to our customers.

It was to our greatest relief when Joe Taylor arrived at our door in a timely fashion and got our estimating department back up and running. I do not remember what CTS charged for their services but I do know we could have lost thousands of dollars if our problem was not immediately corrected.

We place a great emphasis on service and Computer Technical Services is who we have counted on since 2002.

I would strongly recommend Computer Technical Services to anyone looking for a computer service company that shows up when needed and sticks with you until your problem is solved.

Sincerely,
Heidler Roofing Services, Inc.
